

One should learn תורה out loud, as one who learns softly, forgets quickly.

תורה is only found by the humble (as one who is arrogant will not be able to negate his ego to accept תורה).

A person must work exceedingly hard to acquire תורה. He must make תורה his principal occupation. This does not refer to time necessarily, but focus.

A teacher must be prepared to teach his students the same thing many times, until they fully understand it.

If three people are walking together with their רב, the רב should go in the middle, the גדול on the right, and the קטן amongst them on the left. If one person is walking with his teacher, he should always be on his teacher's left.

A person must establish set times for learning every day (i.e., the same time every day).
